Court Orders an Adjournment Until Feb. 13 and That 30 Days Notice He Given Omeers Refuse Outside Help in Drawing Up the Notice-Fight for Proxies.

Judge Ward of the United States Circuit. Court issued yesterday an order directing the management of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company to adjourn its proposed policyholders' meeting to February is and to give the policyholders at least thirty days notice of the meeting. This is the meeting which has been adjourned before as a result of the injunction proceedings brought by the policyholders' committee.

The meeting was scheduled for yesterday afternoon. Judge Ward's order prevented the voting of the proxies held by the company on the proposed amendments to the by-laws, but the mere calling of the meeting to order for the purpose of a regular adjournment afforded the policyholders' representatives an opportunity to mix it up with the management.

and employees of the company. William Hepburn Russell, counsel for the policyholders' committee, moved in the first place that in view of Judge Ward's order a committee made up of a representative of the management and a member of the policyholders' committee be appointed to draw up the notice for the forthcoming meeting and also a circular letter to the policyholders setting forth the purposes of the meeting.

Counsel for the company said this motion was out of order; that the notice which the company's management would send out would recite fully the reasons for the variwould recite fully the reasons for the various adjournments.

Mr. Russell couldn't see any reason, if the management intended to deal fairly and impartially with the policyholders, why their committee should not be represented in the drawing of this circular. He wanted both sides of the controversy set forth. If liens and obligations amounting to more than $1,500,000 were to be saddled on to the policyholders, as he alleged, by the adoption of the proposed amendments to the by-laws he wanted that fact set forth in black and white. He also wanted a full statement of the proceedings at a meeting statement of the proceedings at a meeting of the board of directors on December 18, "when you got together and secretly passed resolutions the purport of which was an attempt to levy an assessment of about $1,300,000 on the policyholders."

$1,300,000 on the policyholders."

"If the management wants to put itself on record," said Lawyer Russell, "as not willing to give the policyholders a true understanding of the situation this is a good time to do it.

"The Chair does not consider your motion in order," ruled President Haynes, who added that this was a special meeting called for a special purpose. Mr. Haynes thought it would be satisfactory if he said that every policyholder would be informed definitely as to the status of his policy and also in regard to his premiums.

gard to his premiums. Up jumped Mr. Russell again. He wanted to know this time if it wasn't true that the management, in the circular which it has prepared, isn't going to include the liens and charges made against policies under the resolution of the board of directors on December 16.

"All acts of the board of directors will be brought to light in the police" gaid.

be brought to light in the notice," said President Haynes.

The policyholders' representatives contend now that the management is seeking to do by authority of the board of directors what they had intended to accomplish by voting proxies at the policyholders' meeting. The policyholders' representatives say that this action by the board of directors, "taken without the knowledge of the State Superintendent," will not hold legally.

Mr. Russell asked for a copy of the proposed notice, and he got rothing. Then he demanded with equal success a list of the policyholders. He charges that the company's management removed the list of policyholders' committee, however, will send out notices to as many rolleyholders as possible, soliciting proxies in the names of Edmond F. Noel, Governor of Mississippi: J. W. Quintero, counsel for the New Orleans policyholders' committee, and William Hepburn Russell.

A Meek Looking Little Man Whom the White Czar Wants Captured Here. . Jan Janoff Pouren is supposed to be the real name of the man arrested late yesterday afternoon on the complaint of Count Nicholas de Lodygensky, Russian Consul-General in this city. Pouren is in a bad way if he is the man the Russian Government is looking for. There are thirteen charges against that man, putting to his credit four murders, two attempts at murder, three cases of arson and three thefts, all alleged to have been committed in the district of Riga, province of Livonia, Russia, between June 22 and August 25, 1906.

Pinkerton detectives have been en Pouren's trail for some time. He has been living in New York and recently lost his job on the Pennsylvania tunnel. His whereaboute were not discovered until a fellow countryman went to the detective agency with the information. Men were at once sent out to watch him and they succeeded in conveying to him informtion that he could get work by applying at 346 East Forty-ninth street. He went there and was arrested by deputy United States marshals. Commissioner Shields held him for examination at 2 P. M. to-day. There were only about twenty-five persons at the meeting, most of them officers ing, terrorized the Riga district in Livonia in 1906, burning and pillaging houses and hotels and murdering those who offered serious resistance. A photograph of the bandit in the possession of the Russian Consul was shown the prisoner by Marshal Henkel and he admitted that it was his likeness. The woman in the picture, he said, was his "lady," but it was learned afterward that Pouren has a wife and seven children in Russia and that the picture is a likeness of a woman he has been living with here. Pouren, if that is his name, is a small, mild looking man. The specific charges against Pouren are as follows:

Former Chicago Banker, on Witness Stand. Says He Put in Memorandum Notes. CHICAGO, Jan. 8. - John R. Walsh, charged with causing the collapse of his three financial institutions and indicted by the Federal Government on a charge of misapplying millions of dollars of the funds of the Chicago National Bank, took the witness stand in his own behalf in Judge Anderson's court to-day. He created a sensation in the afternoon by admitting that he made the excessive loans and famous memorandum notes by which $7,900,000 was drawn from the bank. He declared that the loans thus made were for the best interests of the bank.

"It was done to promote the interest of the bank, to increase the profits and ward against loss," the defendant testified. He proceeded to explain that it was necessary for the bank to finance the various railroads for which the borrowed funds were used, because the failure of the roads would mean financial loss to the banking institution holding its bonds as securities.

The position taken by the defence, it is said, will force the Government to show that there was wrong intent in the acts of Walsh
